

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

Clear skies and light winds will allow temperatures to drop on Friday night, leading to fog formation in many places. Some areas of cloud will prevent fog from forming in some spots, making the fog rather more patchy than was the case on Friday morning. However, where it does form, it is likely to be equally dense, and traffic passing in and out of areas of reduced visibility prove a hazard in itself. Fog will then mostly lift by mid morning but may very locally last until midday in a few prone spots.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Fog

Valid from 00:05 on Sat, 12th Mar 2016 until 10:00 on Sat, 12th Mar 2016

Fog patches are expected to form on Friday night, becoming locally dense by Saturday morning. Not everywhere will see fog, but where it does form visibility will fall below 100 metres in places, and perhaps below 50 metres in a few spots.

Be aware of the potential for some travel disruption and difficult driving conditions.
