Forecast for Friday 04 Feb 2022

Weather: Clear or sunny periods through the day. Strong west to northwesterly winds will bring scattered snow showers, these heaviest and most frequent across Monadhliath, Creag Meagaidh and down towards Ben Alder and Rannoch Moor. A few snow showers getting across to the Cairngorms, especially during the afternoon.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 60%, best chance in the east of the area

Low cloud and visibility: Very good outside of showers and cloud. Quickly falling poor in snow, and patchy cloud down to 750 metres in and around showers.

Met Office Aberdeen Meteorologist's View

Severe wind chill expected at mid-mountain level and above. Tracks may become covered in frequent snow showers across the west of the area.

Forecast for Saturday 05 Feb 2022

Weather: Cloud and persistent snow spreading from the west just before dawn, this lasting until early afternoon. Blizzard like conditions will develop at higher altitudes. Snow will turn to rain below 700 metres for a short time as freezing levels rise late morning and early afternoon. Clearer weather will spread from the northwest in the afternoon with strong northwesterly winds bringing widespread snow showers.

Maximum wind: Windy at all elevations, summit severe gales or storm force winds gusting to 50 to 70 mph

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: Little chance in the morning, improving to 60% early afternoon onwards

Low cloud and visibility: Widely poor in the morning and early afternoon with widespread cloud down to 500 metres, this lifting off the tops as the afternoon progresses. A much clearer end to the day expected with patchy cloud down to 700 metres as showers pass by.

Temperature: Glens: Plus 1 rising to 5 Celsius
At 800m: Around zero or minus 1 Celsius
Freezing level: 600 metres, rising to around 900 metres by late morning for a time, falling back to 200 metres by late afternoon
