

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

A developing low pressure area will move north across Scotland on Sunday. Rainfall totals will be very variable but could well exceed 50 mm in 12-24 hours in places, whilst winds are likely to gust 40-50 mph over some coasts and hills. At this stage computer models do not agree on the track and depth of the low, so there is some uncertainty in the forecast and this warning is likely to be updated.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:15 on Sun, 03rd Aug 2014 until 23:00 on Sun, 03rd Aug 2014

An area of persistent and at times heavy rain will move north across the area, and winds will become strong, with the risk of gales over coasts and hills.

The public should be aware of the risk of localised flooding and of disruption to transport.
