

A map of the British Isles, including Great Britain and Ireland. The landmasses are colored light green, while the surrounding water is light blue. The map shows the outlines of the countries and their internal county boundaries. A yellow rectangle is drawn over a portion of Wales, indicating the study area. Within this rectangle, there is a small yellow square containing three black dots, representing the specific locations of the study sites.

Showers or rain is expected to develop through today, these becoming potentially heavy, prolonged and thundery by this afternoon. Locally torrential downpours are possible with 10 to 20 mm falling locally in an hour and as much as 30 to 40 mm in several hours. The thundery rain will clear from the west through the first half of the night.
