

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

Showers will affect much of Northern Ireland on Monday evening, these turning wintry on high ground. Overnight, showers will become more isolated, and as skies clear, road and pavement temperatures will fall below freezing, and with surfaces wet, icy stretches are expected to form on untreated surfaces. In addition any remaining showers, mainly in the north, could fall onto frozen surfaces, and leave up to 1 cm of snow on high ground above 200 to 300 m.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 00:05 on Tue, 23rd Feb 2016 until 09:00 on Tue, 23rd Feb 2016

Icy stretches are expected to form on many untreated roads and pavements on Monday night, lasting into Tuesday morning. In addition, slight snowfalls are possible on some higher routes, chiefly above 200 to 300 m.

Please be aware of the risk of some difficult driving conditions, and some low level travel disruption.
