

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

A frontal zone stalling over much of the area on Saturday will produce spells of showery rain. Some of this rain will be heavy, perhaps with thunder, and locally torrential. Where the heaviest rain occurs is very uncertain, largely due to the complex fashion in which this frontal zone develops. Current thinking suggests northern and western parts of the region covered by the warning may improve later on Saturday whilst further south and east improvement is considered likely to be slower.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Sat, 24th Aug 2013 until 21:00 on Sat, 24th Aug 2013

Outbreaks of rain affecting parts of England and Wales during Saturday are likely to turn heavy at times, with a risk of local accumulations in excess of 40 mm. The public should be aware of possible localised surface water flooding where heaviest showers.
