Forecast for Sunday 09 May 2021

Weather: Quite cloudy at first with some lingering patchy drizzle and light rain. During the morning conditions will gradually brighten up with cloud lifting and becoming more scattered. Some sunny spells will develop especially over more north and eastern ranges around the Assynt and Glen Affric. Showers will also develop by late morning especially around more westerly ranges like the Cuillins and Torridon, some these will become more prolonged and heavy with a small chance of thunder. Becoming mainly dry with a lot of cloud clearing on Sunday evening and feeling much warmer.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 60%. Some low cloud will shroud the tops in the morning otherwise tops will mainly for a while but many becoming shrouded again in the afternoon.

Visibility: Initially some scattered low cloud will shroud some ranges down to 600m however this will become quite isolated, mainly confined to western ranges. Generally cloud will mainly be above the tops but patches will fall to 600m in any showers that pass and perhaps 500m temporarily in heavier showers in the west. General visibility will be good, perhaps dipping to moderate or poor in any heavier showers.
