Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow :
Cloudy, wet and quite windy conditions will spread east across most parts, clearing through the afternoon. Some heavy rain is expected over parts of Wales and northern England with some strong gusts of wind too. Brighter and more showery conditions will dominate over central and northern Scotland. Temperatures around normal.
Cloudy with some light rain over western parts tonight. Largely dry with occasional clear spells elsewhere.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Rather cloudy generally on Sunday with some outbreaks of rain, but rather warm too. Largely dry with sunny spells on Monday, although rain will reach western parts later. Temperatures around normal.
