Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Through the day tomorrow, the remnants of the overnight rain band will linger across Scotland and northern England bringing persistent and heavy rain, for which warnings are in force. Elsewhere it will be largely fine and dry with sunny spells, though there is the chance of catching a shower, particularly in the west. It will remain breezy throughout.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
The rain will turn lighter and finally clear the north of Scotland through Friday morning with a mixture of sunshine and showers elsewhere. On Saturday a band of showery rain will affect the south with drier conditions further north. Temperatures around average.
