Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Western and northern Scotland will see sunshine and a few showers. Rain through the central swathe of the United Kingdom will edge northwestwards into Northern Ireland and central Scotland during the afternoon. Turning brighter for a time, and indeed warmer, across much of England and Wales, though a risk of rain across the southeast later.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:

Sunday is likely to start off rather cloudy across many areas, but it should brighten up, although scattered showers will break out later in the day. Northern Scotland looks to remain cloudy and damp throughout. More widespread showers on Monday, some turning heavy and thundery.
