

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 04 Feb 2016

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:

A damp start for most but the rain will become mainly confined to the north and west, with some heavy outbreaks. Staying mostly cloudy today with the best of the brightness in the east. It'll be mostly cloudy tonight with patchy rain mainly in the north and west. Heavy rain arrives in the northwest by dawn, with coastal gales.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

A wet and windy start to the day in the northwest. Mostly cloudy but mild elsewhere. Heavy rain moves into Wales and northern England later, with some hill snow. It'll stay unsettled with rain and the risk of gales on Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2016. Published by the Met Office.