

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

After another very warm day, the high temperatures may trigger some thunderstorms across the far west of Northern Ireland on Friday evening. Whilst many will miss the worst, a few places could see 20-30 mm in an hour or less.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 16:00 on Fri, 26th May 2017 until 22:00 on Fri, 26th May 2017

While most areas will stay dry, isolated heavy, thundery showers have the potential to bring localised flooding, hail and frequent lightning this evening.
