

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

As a weather system moves in from the south and comes up against cold air over the UK, there is the chance that rain could turn to heavy snow in places. Several cm of snow are possible, especially over hills, with drifting in strong winds. There is also the possibility of a few cm of wet snow gathering at lower levels. At present the extent and amounts of any snow are very uncertain, and it is quite possible that snow might not be too disruptive.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow

Valid from 00:15 on Mon, 02nd Apr 2018 until 23:45 on Mon, 02nd Apr 2018

Headline: Possibility of heavy snow over parts of England, Wales and southern Scotland, especially for high ground. Travel may be affected.

What To Expect: There is a small chance of travel delays on roads with some stranded vehicles and passengers, along with delayed or cancelled rail and air travel.

There is a slight chance that some rural communities could become cut off.

There is a small chance that power cuts will occur and other services, such as mobile phone coverage, may be affected.
